Dear delegates,

It is an honor for us to welcome you to the sixteenth edition of SIMUN, and specifically to the World Health Organization. We are Alexia, Daniela and María José, and we are thrilled to work with you, since we have been given the privilege of performing as the academic chair of this committee during SIMUN 2025.

Actually, we have enjoyed the fortunate opportunity of having participated in this project on several occasions. We have delivered as delegates in previous years, and now we get to oversee the development of this forum throughout every working session. Therefore, you can count on us for support at any time. It is our responsibility to serve you as guides.

Throughout the debate, you will get the chance to refine your argumentative and negotiation skills, and you will learn about the diverse perspectives within the international community regarding the topics at hand. However, we hope you are interested in participating in this committee not only for the discussion itself, but also because it is an opportunity for you to make long-lasting friendships and meaningful connections.

Moreover, your involvement is incredibly important to us, as we believe that every voice deserves to be heard, and every idea deserves to be expressed. Remember the significance of your contributions, as you represent a delegation whose willingness is essential to solve some pressing international issues.

We have high expectations of your decisions leading to positive outcomes. As delegates, on this committee you will have to address relevant current matters which require a prompt response to ensure that people globally can live healthy lives. We are confident that you will rise to the occasion and phrase out strategies that can inspire real-world action through international cooperation. Best of luck.

Sincerely,

The Academic Chair of the World Health Organization
